GIANTS OF GOLF

Gene Sarazen and (inset) Walter Hagen, the famous American golfers.

An American player filing down a "punched" club, now barred.

When the open golf championship opened at Troon yesterday, Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen, who made 82, were among the favourites, but the man most fancied was G. Duncan. He scored 78.

WAR MEMORIAL DISPUTE

The bronze panel of the Broadstairs and St. Peter's (Thanet) war memorial, and (inset) its sculptor, Mr. Courtney Pollock. The Memorial Committee have objected to Mr. Pollock's name being carved on the back of the plinth. Mr. Pollock's name appears as a roughly-scribbled signature on the bronze panel, but he has carried out the entire memorial, including the architectural portions.

LEARNING TO RIDE IN THE ROW

Major Faudel-Phillips giving his little niece, Miss Cecil Haycock, a riding lesson in the Row yesterday. The little maid seems fully conscious of the dignity of her position.

SUIT BY BROTHER

Mr. Alfred Mansell, of Sutton, whom his brother, Mr. Ernest William Mansell, of Shortlands, Kent, sued yesterday for alleged libel before the Lord Chief Justice.

Mr. E. W. Mansell, the plaintiff. The alleged libel, counsel explained, was that Mr. Alfred Mansell was said to have described the plaintiff as a blackmailer.

CHANCE TO WIN £500 TO-DAY.

'Daily Mirror' Contest on Most Beautiful Child.

CAN YOU DECIDE?

Forecast Prize If You Study
Pictures on Centre Pages

Who is the most beautiful child of the year? That is the question which our readers are called upon to decide to-day.

On the centre pages of this issue are published photographic studies of the ten children under five years of age who were chosen by the weekly votes of readers as the most charming entrants in the junior section of The Daily Mirror £2,500 Beauty Competition. From these the winner of the £500 prize has now to be selected.

Any reader may win the forecast prize of £500 by the exercise of sound judgment. Choose the most beautiful competitor and indicate your choice, by number only, on the coupon printed in this issue, together with an estimate of the number of votes the selected entrant will receive.

Coupons should not be sent in yet. On Thursday portraits in Section II. of the contest will be published, and the second portion of the coupon can be completed.

POINTS TO REMEMBER.

Readers May Send in as Many Coupons as They Wish.

Next Monday the photographs of the senior entrants will appear, and readers will then be able to fill up the last portion of the coupon and send it in.

Judging from what happened in the preliminary stages of the competition, readers whose interest is confined to the voting will have little difficulty in deciding on the actual prize-winners.

In the past there has always been a clear majority for the popular favourite. The chief difficulty of voters will be to estimate the number of votes. On this point the following figures will afford welcome guidance.

In a representative week's voting the votes cast for Section III. entrants were:

T—121,838.	N—75,078.
U—138,737.	O—16,095.
V—118,875.	Y—106,548.

Readers who use these figures as a basis of their estimate must remember two things:—

(1) That the voting prize in the week under consideration was only £100, whereas it is now £500; and

(2) That the votes of readers were divided between six entrants, whereas now they will be divided between ten.

There is thus plenty of scope for the exercise of real skill and judgment in filling up the coupons. Readers may send in as many coupons as they wish, and they may vary their selection and voting estimates in any way they choose.

The essential point is that every coupon must contain a selection of one entrant from each of the three sections, and that an estimate of the number of votes must be entered against each selection.

INSPECTOR IN DOCK.

Police Official in Alleged Motor-Car Conspiracy.

Ingenuous frauds on companies, which finance the sale of cars on the hire-purchase system, were alleged at the Old Bailey yesterday, when four men were charged with conspiring to defraud.

They were Godfrey Bretell Shepherd, engineer; William Richard Hall, police officer; William Robert Volrath, engineer; and Arthur Lowden Smith, caterer. All pleaded not guilty. Mr. Campion said Shepherd, a motor-car dealer, was moving spirit in the registration of the Clifford Motor Company, Limited. Hall was a sub-divisional inspector of the Metropolitan Police.

Explaining the alleged frauds, counsel said Shepherd or the Clifford Motor Company purchased cars, and then sold it on the hire-purchase system to companies to repurchase them and lend them out on the hire-purchase system to one or other of the defendants.

The same car would be sold to two different companies, and in one case it was sold to three companies, each of whom re-sold it on the hire-purchase system, and unknown to each other, to three different defendants.

Evidence was called for the prosecution. The trial is likely to last several days.

DRY CONFERENCE.

Mr. MacNeill stated in Parliament yesterday that the Government would be represented at an international congress against alcoholism, to be held in Copenhagen in August. It was not anticipated that any expense charged on public funds would be incurred.

SHOTS AT SHIPS.

British and French Vessels
Hit by U.S. Coastguard.

LAST "WET" LINER.

A French vessel and a ship of British registry, lying among the liquor fleet, had their rigging torn away by shots fired by coastguard cutters at rum-runners, says a New York report, quoted by Reuters.

The foreign vessels were hit accidentally, as they were not seen in the darkness.

The liners Carmania, Celtic and France arrived at New York yesterday with their rigging locked up. Customs officials immediately placed seals on them.

The White Star liner Majestic, the first liner to leave Southampton to come under prohibition law, will carry sufficient wines and spirits to last the westbound voyage. Minute calculations have been made to ensure total consumption before arrival. She will return to England with 800 first-class passengers as a dry ship, save for medical comforts ordered by Board of Trade regulations.

LONELY BOATMAN.

Unknown Man Drowned When Craft
Sinks in Humber.

Mystery attaches to the lonely occupant of a small motor-boat who was drowned while being towed into the Humber.

The man was seen signalling by the Government steamer Sir Herbert Miles, near Burcon Buoy, and he asked to be towed to Grimsby.

Ten minutes later the motor-boat began to sink, and its lonely occupant was seen clinging to the mast. The steamer stopped, a life belt thrown and a boat launched, but before it could reach the man he went down with the motor-boat.

The captain stated that the boatman did not disclose his identity when asking for a tow nor did he complain of his boat. No Grimsby or Cleethorpes boat is known to be missing.

PANEL PATIENT 'DEALS.'

Ministry of Health Deny Allegations of Trafficking.

With reference to the alleged buying and selling of panel patients in Scotland, the Ministry of Health stated yesterday that there appeared to be no evidence of any such practice being general.

Certainly, it was stated, there was no evidence of its existence in England. There might be cases of overburdened panel doctors transferring work to other practitioners as a means of relief and of securing adequate medical attention to patients, but no complaints had been received by the Ministry.

HUSBAND'S CONFESSION.

Divorce Decree for Mrs. Gillian Hope
Bonham Carter.

In the Divorce Court yesterday Sir Henry Duke granted a decree nisi to Mrs. Gillian Margaret Hope Bonham Carter on the grounds of the desertion and misconduct of her husband, Francis Hugh Bonham Carter, an underwriting member of Lloyd's. There was no defence.

The petitioner said the marriage was in June, 1911, and her husband had left her in March, 1922, she wrote asking him to return.

He wrote: "It would be idle to pretend that I have been faithful to you since I left you. This year you will find, if you care to make inquiry, that I stayed with a woman at the Waldorf Hotel in January, and later at the Metropole, Brighton.

On November 28 last she obtained a decree of restitution of conjugal rights.

POET'S CARETAKER.

Death of Mary Dixon, Who Welcomed
Admirers of Wordsworth.

For many years the caretaker of Dove Cottage, Grasmere, where the poet Wordsworth took his bride, and where he lived for many years, Mrs. Mary Dixon died yesterday aged ninety-four. She remembered Wordsworth very well, and formed an important character in some of the last of the poet's Reminiscences.

She showed thousands of visitors through the little rustic, lime-washed cottage, once an inn, carrying the sign of the Dove and Olive Branch.

Some years ago a committee of lovers of Wordsworth purchased the cottage as a national monument to the poet, and visitors could always obtain the key from old Mary Dixon.

KILLED BY WINDOW FALL.

A window-cleaner at work on the third story of a house in Durham-terrace, Westbourne-gardens, W., yesterday fell, and striking the balcony below, rebounded on to the pavement, a distance of over 40ft. He died before arrival at hospital.

BAN ON NAME.

Sculptor Not Allowed to Sign
War Memorials.

THANET DISPUTE.

Do either sculptors or architects receive proper public recognition for their work?

The question arises from the action of the committee responsible for the Broadstairs and St. Peter's (Thanet) War Memorial, in preventing the name of Mr. Courtenay Pollock, who was both architect and sculptor, from being modestly inscribed on the back of the plinth.

Mr. Pollock's design consisted of a cross, with a Crusader's sword, and a bronze tablet depicting the horrors, heroisms and sacrifices of the war.

His name, as the sculptor, is roughly scratched on the bronze tablet, but the builders, who wished to inscribe his name at the back of the plinth as the designer of the architectural portion, were virtually expelled from the site.

Moreover, the designer received not so much an invitation to be present at the unveiling, which took place on Sunday, as a command to "be good enough to assemble at Pierremont Hall at 2.45 p.m."

The matter has aroused great indignation, not only among architects, but also among sculptors.

"So far as I know," Mr. F. W. Pomeroy, the well-known sculptor, told The Daily Mirror yesterday, "sculptors have the right to have their names on the question, under an Act of Parliament passed by George III., in order to keep their copyright."

"They manage these things better in France, where both sculptors and architects receive public recognition. Sculptors, you may take it from me, are generally indignant at the treatment meted out to them here."

So far as architects are concerned, an official of the Society of Architects said:—"There is no definite law on the question, but it is certainly a matter of custom for the architect of a work or building to be acknowledged."

HIS LIFE FOR A GAME.

Young Miner Falls Into Canal Trying to Recover Ball and Later Dies.

Whilst some Nottingham youths were playing football on the canal side on Sunday night the ball was kicked into the water, Fred Lister, aged nineteen, a miner, of Hawkebridge-street, fell in when trying to recover it, and when pulled out by the police was unconscious.

He died on the way to hospital.

CONSTABLE'S RUSE.

Borrows Mackintosh and Hides in Coal Truck to Watch Couple.

How a police-constable borrowed a mackintosh and cap from a private individual and hid himself in a coal truck to watch the movements of a man and a woman was described at Highgate yesterday.

George Johnson, thirty-nine, was remanded on a charge of having been concerned with a woman, and in custody, in attempting to break into a draper's shop at Hornsey where it was closed for the dinner hour on Saturday.

The constable said he saw the prisoner and a woman acting suspiciously near the shop, and in order to keep watch he disguised himself as described and concealed himself in the railway siding immediately opposite the shop.

He saw prisoner, in the woman's presence, take something from his pocket and operate on the door. The two then separated.

At the police station a jemmy and a padlock missing from the door were found upon Johnson.

WIFE'S £1,500 ALIMONY.

Judge's Decision in Appeal by Ex-M.P.
Who Made Fortune During War.

A former M.P. for Blackburn, who made a fortune during the war, was ordered by Sir Henry Duke in the Divorce Court yesterday to pay his wife £1,500 a year alimony.

Mr. Percy Thompson Dean appealed against an order of the Registrar that he should pay his wife £1,500 a year alimony.

His Lordship said the marriage was not quite a normal one. The wife was a shorthand-typist and the husband a traveller. They were married in October, 1908, and a child was born early the following year.

The marriage was kept a secret. The husband's income then was only a few hundreds a year, but during the war some companies in which he was interested prospered considerably.

After the war the husband intimated that he was not going to resume their old life, and the wife obtained a decree of restitution of conjugal rights, and later a judicial separation.

When the petition for alimony came before the Registrar the husband's average income was about £5,700 a year, and the Registrar awarded one-third of this amount, £1,900 a year, as alimony.

£31,700 ON PARK LAKE.

"What a lot of money to spend on a pond," said an M.P. when Sir J. Baird, in Parliament yesterday, stated that the cost on St. James' Park lake would be £31,700. It was hoped the lake would be filled at the end of the month.

LAWSUIT OVER BURNED CASTLE.

Irish Farmer Sues for Insurance Money.

DESTROYED BY I.R.A.

Counsel to Call Man Who Set
It On Fire.

An Irish castle, said to have been given by Queen Elizabeth to a family in whose possession it remained until shortly before it was destroyed by Sinn Feiners in 1921, figured in a claim yesterday before Mr. Justice Avory in the King's Bench Division.

Mr. Jeremiah Leen, of County Kerry, brought the action against Messrs. F. Hall, I. D. Watson and Le Sturge, as representing Lloyd's underwriters, and sued for £10,000 of insurance covering damage.

Mr. Leen described how armed men came to his house one night, covered him and his wife with revolvers and took them away.

Next day he found his castle had been burnt and destroyed.

TAKEN OFF BY NIGHT.

Irish Farmer Tells How He Looked
Out and Saw Castle in Flames.

Mr. M. O'Connor, for the plaintiff, a well-to-do Irish farmer, said that in January, 1921, he purchased Ballyheigue Castle, Co. Kerry, for £4,000 from a member of the Crosbie family, to whom it had been given by Queen Elizabeth.

On May 24 he effected the policy of insurance in question for £10,000 for a period of six months, paying a premium of £200.

On the night of May 27 some men came to his house, covered Mr. Leen and his wife with revolvers and took them away. The following morning Mr. Leen found that his castle had been burnt and destroyed.

The estimated cost of making good the damage at the time was £20,000, said Mr. O'Connor, so there was no question of over-insurance.

The defendants said they were induced to make the policy by the failure of the plaintiff to disclose the material fact that the castle had been occupied by "G" forces for their use or the internment of Sinn Féin prisoners, and the plaintiff was aware that threats had been made to destroy it. Counsel said:—"I have taken the singularly bold course of calling the man who was in charge of that part of Kerry for what was called the Irish Republic."

"HEARD OF NO THREATS."
"He was the man who set fire to the castle, and he will tell you that," the defendants replied by him to that effect came only five or six hours before the building was destroyed."

The plaintiff, giving evidence, said he was staying then with his wife and family at the steward's house, when three men arrived between nine and ten at night.

They took him, his wife and child and a servant to the village, where they were lodged in different houses, and instructions were given that they were to be kept there all night.

On looking out in the morning, witness saw the castle in flames, and he was then released.

He added that he had never heard any threat or suggestion that the castle would be burnt.

MOVES FOR JOINT ALLIED ACTION ON REPARATIONS

Lord Curzon's Busy Day—Visited by French and Italian Ambassadors.

REPORT TO CABINET MEETING LAST NIGHT

M. Poincaré Favourable to Conference, But Wants Ruhr Resistance To Be Ended First.

Important steps to secure joint Allied action in the direction of a settlement with Germany were taken yesterday.

Lord Curzon discussed with experts the latest German offer and had interviews with the British Ambassador at Berlin and the French and Italian Ambassadors. The Cabinet meeting expected to be held in the morning was postponed till night, when Lord Curzon reported the outcome of these conversations.

M. Poincaré is stated to be anxious for an inter-Allied Conference on reparations, but urges first a Joint Note to Germany demanding that passive resistance should cease in the Ruhr. Britain's view is that discussion should come first.

Russia's reply to the British Note regarding Soviet propaganda was received by the Foreign Office yesterday.

FRENCH ENVOY BRINGS PEASANT ARMY THREAT TO MARCH ON SOFIA.

POINCARÉ'S MESSAGE.

British Urge No Action Till Allies Confer.

CABINET POSTPONED.

Events moved definitely yesterday towards a stage in the reparations problem, when the Allies will present a joint reply to Germany's latest Note.

Some surprise was caused when it became known that the meeting of the Cabinet, which was expected to be held in the morning, had been postponed until the evening.

Lord Curzon was early at the Foreign Office engaged in discussing the German Note with experts, and he was visited by Lord D'Abernon, the British Ambassador in Berlin, and Count de Saint Aulaire, the French Ambassador, and later by the Italian Ambassador.

POINCARÉ FAVOURABLE.

Count de Saint Aulaire, it is understood, explained to Lord Curzon the French attitude, and handed to him a communication from M. Poincaré, which, it is believed, contained an intimation that the French Government would not be averse from an Allied conference on reparations and the Ruhr, in order that a joint reply might be sent to Germany.

There has been no definite proposal from the British side for an inter-Allied conference, but in the circumstances it would not be altogether surprising if one were to take place shortly.

Reuter learns from a well-informed source that M. Poincaré is anxious that the Allies, including Great Britain, should immediately address a Note to the German Government demanding that passive resistance in the Ruhr should cease. The French Premier is understood to regard this step as a necessary preliminary to the undertaking of any Allied discussion on the reparations question.

The British view, on the other hand, appears to be that a full Allied discussion on the reparations question must be held prior to the taking of any such action as is proposed by the French Premier.

QUESTIONS IN COMMONS.

Mr. Lambert, in the Commons, asked what action the Government was taking to secure for Britain a just share of German reparation payments and the payment of Allied debts.

Mr. Baldwin said he was unable to say more than that the question was engaging the attention of the Government.

Later, when Sir R. H. Briston asked the Prime Minister whether he was able to make any further statement with regard to the Ruhr, Mr. Baldwin replied: "I cannot make any statement at the moment."

The Reichs-Presse says that politicians of all parties and mayors of the Bavarian Palatinate at Landau decided to call upon Dr. Cuno, the Imperial Chancellor, to order the cessation of passive resistance in the Ruhr and Rhineland.—Reuter.

RUSSIAN NOTE.

Lengthy Document Received by Foreign Office.

Mr. Ronald McNeill, replying in the Commons yesterday to Commander Kenworthy, said the reply of the Russian Government to the Note from his Majesty's Government of May 29 had been received that morning.

He was now in a position to make any statement on the subject.

The Note is a long document in reply to the British communication which followed Mr. Krasin's last interview with Lord Curzon.

Bulgaria Scoured by Troops for Ex-Premier.

ORDER RESTORED.

Bulgaria is being scoured by revolutionary troops for M. Stambulsky, the ex-Premier, but so far no trace of him has been found.

During a search of his house at Sofia, says Reuter, a considerable sum in Swiss francs, pounds sterling and Bulgarian notes was found.

A telegram to the Paris Journal states that M. Stambulsky is at his country house, guarded by armed peasants. Other telegrams reproduced in the Paris Press, and quoted by the Exchange, declare that preparations are being made for an armed force to march on Sofia on behalf of M. Stambulsky's Government.

Sofia is again quiet, states Reuter. No fatalities are reported from the provinces, and the only place where any have occurred is Sofia, where four policemen and one soldier were killed.

There have been isolated disturbances in the provinces due to Agrarian agitation. An Exchange message gives the death-roll at 100.

Telegraphic and telephonic communications have not been interrupted, says Reuter, and normal conditions of life have been restored everywhere.

Although the Stambulsky-Cabinet feared a coup it did not expect to be overthrown. The former Minister of the Interior assured the Prime Minister on the eve of the coup that every precaution had been taken.

King Boris received all the members of the new Government yesterday.

DISHONEST BANKRUPTS.

Counsel Says They Have Defrauded Firms of £2,000,000 in Last 2 Years.

"In Bradford and elsewhere during the last two years no less than £2,000,000 have been lost by fraudulent bankruptcies in London," said Mr. Conyns Carr, yesterday.

Sentence of fifteen months' imprisonment in the second division was passed at the Old Bailey on Frederick Charles Rawlings, forty-four, a textile merchant, of Westcliffe-on-Sea, who pleaded guilty to obtaining goods by false pretences.

The deficiency in his bankruptcy, said counsel, amounted to no less than £54,000.

TO POLL BY 'PLANE.

How Difficulties Will Be Overcome in Ontario Elections.

For the first time an aeroplane will be used to take voters to the poll in the Ontario elections. At the far distant polling station of Moose Factory, in the extreme north, voters will be taken by plane.

The roads to the polling station are not expected to be passable on election day, June 25, while the lake and streams will not be available for canoes because of ice.

FAITHFUL DOG'S VIGIL.

When the police early yesterday attempted to enter the bedroom of George Catlin, sub-postmaster of Broxbourne, Herts, they were held off for over two hours by the man's fox terrier, which prevented anyone from entering the room.

When the dog was driven off the police found Catlin sitting dead in his arm-chair.

Mr. Albert Barker, chairman of the U.S. Shipping Board, which is charged responsible delivery of liner fleet, has retired.

Capt. Amundsen, who is expected shortly to start on his flight across the North Pole from Spitzbergen.

WIFE'S STRANGE STORY OF MARRIAGE TO "OFFICER."

'Mental Incompetence' Plea for Divorce.

"FLEW FROM COLOGNE."

On the ground that her husband was not in a fit mental condition to enter into a contract at the time of his marriage, Mrs. Ethel Margaret Forster, of Prospect Cottage, Bushey Heath, petitioned in the Divorce Court yesterday for her marriage to be declared null.

Mr. Bayford, K.C., said the husband was a man who drank to excess, and in 1920 had been in an inebriated home. The medical evidence would show that when under the influence of alcohol he had most exaggerated ideas of delusions as to what he was.

The marriage took place on February 8, 1923, at the register office at Amphil (Beds). During the eighteen days before that he had got through sixteen bottles of whisky.

In the certificate he described himself as being forty-four years of age, when he was really only thirty-seven, and said he was a major in the Army, but he was not in the Army. He described his father, who was alive, as being dead, and said he was a colonel in the Royal Horse Guards, which was not true.

After his marriage he saw nothing of his wife except at meal times.

He met his wife at a dance at Woburn Sands a short time before the marriage.

The President: The question is, I suppose, whether he understood the nature of the act at the ceremony?

Mr. Bayford: That is so. Mrs. Forster said that when she met her husband first he said he was a major stationed at Cologne and was retiring on the following Sunday.

He proposed marriage to her, but she refused him, and ten days later he came to see her and said he had flown from Cologne and was going to Bedford. He later renewed his proposal of marriage, and was accepted.

The hearing was adjourned.

FOUR DEAD IN BEDROOM.

Tragic Fate of Woman and Three Young Children at Camden Town.

Mrs. Mary Thompson and three children were found dead yesterday in a bedroom at Priory-street, Camden Town, N.W., with throat wounds.

The children—all girls—were Maizie, aged four and a half years; Lily, aged two and a half, and a baby of six months.

POOR PAY FOR HEROISM.

M.P. Asks If Men Who Saved Liverpool May Have Increased Awards.

Liverpool's escape from a disastrous explosion was mentioned yesterday in Parliament.

Mr. R. Gwynne said a large quantity of explosives was set into the docks by the War Office, and the accident which caused a fire to break out was due to a passing steam crane. The matter was still under close examination.

Mr. Gwynne added that all precautions were being taken.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor asked whether the Government could see their way to supplement the almost insultingly small awards given to men who saved the property and lives of so many people. Mr. Gwynne was understood to say that he would have inquiries made.

B.A.'s 14 LANGUAGES AT 14.

Though only fourteen, Master E. R. Hardy, who arrived yesterday at Plymouth from New York, has already graduated B.A., and can speak fourteen languages.

He is the son of Professor E. R. Hardy, and is known as America's boy prodigy. He is visiting England for a holiday.

LOWESTOFT TEACHERS.

It is understood that no settlement was arrived at yesterday at the conference held at the Board of Education in connection with the Lowestoft teachers' dispute.

DRAMATIC TURN IN PIT SHAFT MYSTERY.

Man Charged with Child's Murder at Inquest.

BROUGHT FROM GAOL.

Woman's Story of Strange Statement 3 Years Ago.

"The children will be all right. We have found them a good home. They will never trouble me any more."

This statement was alleged by Mrs. Eliza Hammond, of Glossop, to have been made to her by Edward Burrows, sixty-two, a labourer, committed for trial to Derby Assizes on a charge of murdering Tommy Woods, a boy, whose body was found in the Simmondsly pit by the police.

At Glossop yesterday Burrows was present in court—in the custody of two warders—when the inquest was resumed on the bodies of Hannah Calladine and her two children, Elsie, aged four, and Albert Edward, fourteen months.

Their remains were recovered from the same pit shaft.

Hannah Calladine and her children disappeared three years ago.

The coroner described the children's remains as those of Elsie Larke and Albert Edward Burrows.

STAYED THREE WEEKS.

Mrs. Eliza Hammond, whose house is directly opposite that occupied by Burrows, said she remembered Mrs. Burrows summoning her husband for desertion in January, 1920, and she remembered Hannah Calladine and the two children coming to Glossop.

They stayed three weeks. Burrows always called Mrs. Calladine "Nanny."

On January 12, 1921, she says Mrs. Calladine standing at the door of Burrows' house, about 6 or 6.30.

Next day, the witness said, she saw Burrows about 8 a.m., as he was going into his house. He had a stick in his hand.

Later that morning she remarked to him, "You have been having a walk early this morning." Burrows replied, "Yes, I have been taking Elsie to town."

The Coroner: You mean Hannah Calladine's little girl?

Witness: Yes. I asked him where they had gone, and he replied, "That is a secret between me and her. I have promised I never would tell."

PAIR OF CHILD'S CLOGS.

He also told witness that Hannah Calladine was working in a bacon shop "down Streetford way," a major stationed at Cologne and was retiring on the following Sunday.

Inspector Charveick then produced in court a white-handled table knife, much corroded, which was recovered from the airshaft along with the human bones and a pair of child's clogs.

The inspector said the clogs had been identified by George Robinson, of Nantwich, as a pair he made in 1919 and similar to some sold to Hannah Calladine that year.

Witness showed Mary Elizabeth Calladine (sister of the dead woman) a green striped coat and child's clogs which she identified as having been made by her for Hannah Calladine's child, Elsie.

KENTISH TOWN CASE.

Correction and Apologies to Mr. Tancy Lee, the Ex-Champion Boxer.

In our issue of the 29th ultimo we published a portrait of Mr. Tancy Lee, of Leith, the well-known ex-champion boxer, together with a report of police court proceedings with reference to an alleged assault upon him.

It, however, transpires that it is a Mr. William Homer who is alleged to have been assaulted and that Mr. Tancy Lee was in no way concerned in the matter.

The Daily Mirror accordingly desires to correct this mistake (which was due to the fact that the prosecutor, Mr. William Homer, carried on his business as a bookbinder under the name of Tancy Lee) and tender its sincere regrets and apologies to Mr. Tancy Lee (the ex-champion boxer) both for the references to him in our report of the proceedings in question and the publication of his photograph in connection therewith.

MODEST MR. IRISH.

Owner of Papyrus "In H'ding" on Farm—Tired on Contradictions.

Tired of being congratulated and fêted, Mr. Ben Irish, owner of Papyrus, the Derby winner, has returned secretly to his Peterborough farm. He sneaked in late on Sunday night to avoid being met by a demonstration, he told the Daily Mirror. "I came to London unknown, and after Wednesday afternoon I could not move for the crush. Everywhere I went I was recognised."

"Ladies even stopped their cars in Bond-street to congratulate me, and I am tired of it." Referring to the beggar letters, he said one woman wanted him to adopt her ten children, while a man asked him to buy him a new car as his old one was getting shabby.

Only the Best is good enough for your Baby

The production of a milk food good enough for your baby—a milk food like Glaxo—demands long years of specialisation; a profound knowledge of the chemistry and biology of milk; the best scientific skill; the most exacting care; and rigid observance of the highest possible standards of purity, quality and cleanliness, at every stage of production.

GLAXO was the first food derived entirely from milk to be produced expressly for infant feeding. While Glaxo is also a food of great benefit to growing children, expectant and nursing mothers, invalids and the aged—its production, at every stage, is ruled by the fact that it is primarily intended as an infant food.

The very best of Milk

Only the very best milk—the pure, fresh milk of healthy, properly nourished cows—is fit for your baby's food. We pay a special price for the milk from which Glaxo is made. We exercise a close supervision over the cows and the dairy farms. Only milk which conforms to a prescribed standard of quality and purity is used for Glaxo.

Glaxo is rich in Vitamins

The vitamin content of milk varies. It depends upon how the cows are fed. "Glaxo" cows live in the open and feed on green grass all the year round, so that their milk is always rich in vitamins. Continuous research conducted over a period of more than three years has demonstrated that Glaxo is exceptionally rich in the vitamins essential to nutrition and growth.

Glaxo is Standardised

Milk varies greatly in richness, and the fat content of ordinary dried milks has been shown to vary from 23½ per cent. to 33½ per cent. It is not good for your baby to have a food which is rich in fat one day and poor the next. Therefore, Glaxo is standardised according to a formula laid down for us by eminent Infant Specialists. So that, in every tin of Glaxo, the proportions of food elements are always the same. The fat content of human milk is 3.1 per cent., of reconstituted Glaxo 3.2 per cent.

We add Lactose (Milk Sugar)

The ideal food for an infant is the breast-milk of a healthy mother. Therefore we aim to make Glaxo resemble breast-milk in the closest possible degree. Cow's milk (and therefore ordinary dried milks) contain less lactose than human milk. We add lactose to Glaxo.

The Digestibility of Glaxo

The milk curd, or casein, in Glaxo forms in the stomach, tiny soft particles similar to those formed by human milk. That is why Glaxo is as readily digested as human milk and can be given in turn with the breast without fear of digestive disturbance.

Freedom from Tuberculosis and Disease Germs

Glaxo is 100 times purer than "Grade A" Certified Milk, 10,000 times purer than the average dairyman's milk. Particularly is this of vital importance in hot weather, when bacteria multiply rapidly in liquid milk. Periodical tests are made of Glaxo

Mr. and Mrs. Langford Reed, the well-known authors.

Joan's mother writes:—"My little daughter is 5½ years. As a baby we thought she could not live, she was so thin and fretful, and we tried so many things that the doctor forbade us to try any more. Then a neighbour not only told us about Glaxo, but mixed my baby's first Glaxo feed. Then my darling began to thrive—she obviously liked Glaxo and Glaxo liked her! Now, she is regarded as a beauty, having recently won a big West End firm of photographers' First Prize of £25 and the First Beauty Prize at the Crystal Palace last year.... We firmly believe her vitality is owing to Glaxo."

in search of the bacillus tuberculosis, and in not a single instance has this bacillus been found.

Laboratory Control at Every Stage of Production

Each Glaxo factory has its laboratory. We retain a large staff of highly skilled bacteriologists and chemists. It is the duty of these chemists to inspect and test, not only the milk itself, but everything that comes in contact with the milk. These chemists are responsible, too, for the vitally important standardisation of the milk previously referred to. They supervise every detail of the delicate operation of transforming this standardised milk into Glaxo, a process which must be carried out rapidly, but with scientific exactitude. They further, before Glaxo is packed, satisfy themselves by actual analysis that it conforms to those high standards upon the maintenance of which the reputation of Glaxo has been built. During the past year no fewer than 20,000 analyses have been made in our laboratories, and over 2,500 bacteriological examinations.

Glaxo is untouched by Hand

From first to last, Glaxo is untouched by hand. Exposure to the air is also practically eliminated. The weighing and packing of Glaxo into the well-known tins are performed by electrically-controlled, enclosed, automatic weighers, which pass the Glaxo direct into hygienic parchment bags. These bags are immediately placed in the tins and the tins sealed. In these airtight, double-lidded tins, Glaxo will keep indefinitely safe against contamination, so that it reaches your nursery as fresh and pure as when it left the factory.

The Proof of the Food is the Babies it Builds

More than a million children owe their sturdy health, their strong limbs and good teeth largely to the foundation laid by Glaxo in infancy. The children of two Royal Houses have been reared on Glaxo. Right from the start doctors have not only recommended Glaxo, but have reared their own children on it.

Glaxo contains everything your baby needs to build firm flesh, strong straight bones, good teeth, and a sturdy and vigorous constitution. It contains nothing whatever that a young baby should not have.

A Doctor says—"I have found Glaxo at all times to be an extremely useful and efficient food which quite overcomes the loss of 'nature's milk.' I have used it with marked success in my own family, as well as with many other infants, and can safely say that I have found none better." (Signed) —, M.B.

Ask your Doctor!

The first step to Happy Motherhood is to get the 156-page Glaxo Baby Book

If you have a baby, or expect a baby, you cannot afford to be without the 156-page Glaxo Baby Book. It is a perfect treasure-house of reliable information upon every phase of baby's life. To obtain as much knowledge of "mothercraft" as the Glaxo Baby Book will give you, you would have to buy several other books costing very many shillings.

With the Glaxo Baby Book we will also send you, without extra charge, the following "mother-helps":—

1. A GLAXO WEIGHT CHART.
2. AN ILLUSTRATED LIST OF THE GLAXO BABY CLOTHING PATTERNS.

And to Expectant Mothers only who state the month baby is due:

3. "BEFORE BABY COMES." Specially written for expectant mothers by a doctor, this booklet offers commonsense counsel for the guidance of the mother-to-be.

Contents of "Before Baby Comes"

When Motherhood Really Commences; Obstetric Table; The Expectant Mother's Food; Consult Your Doctor Early; Exercise; Fresh Air; Clothing; Glaxo Maternity Belt; Hygiene; Care of Teeth; Sleep; Mental Health; List of Articles Needed at Confinement; Recipes for the Expectant Mother.

£500 for a Name

The name is needed for the Burner which is one of the striking features of the "New World" Cooker.

The great fact about the burner is that it brings the cost of gas-cooking down to pre-war level. No other burner does this. Other points to notice are that it never clogs, is always clean, and gives full heat value of all the gas consumed. Variation in the size of flame is automatically controlled by the special burner taps.

There are many other advantages you ought to know. Go to your Gas Show-room, or to the London Showrooms of the Radiation firms (addresses below), or ask your ironmonger, plumber, stores, &c. Ask to be shown the new burner for yourself. Ask for a booklet describing the many advantages one by one. Then think of a suitable name and send it in.

THIS WEEK IS YOUR LAST CHANCE OF WINNING THIS £500.

There are also 100 Consolation Prizes of £1 Each.

Rules of the Competition.

All entries of suggested names for the new burner must be made on the coupon below and must be received by St. James's Advertising Co., Ltd., 1, Wardour St., London, W.1, not later than June 15, 1923. Envelopes should be marked "Competition." Not more than one name may be sent in by any competitor. To each coupon should be attached a sheet of paper giving, in not more than twenty words, your view of the good points of the burner.

In the event of a tie, the prize will be awarded to the competitor whose statement of the good points is considered best by the Judge, Mr. Gilbert A. Godley, Director of the Daily Mirror, but consented to act as Judge, and his decision in the event of any dispute shall be accepted by all competitors as final. All prize-winning names shall become the property of Radiation, Ltd., who reserve to themselves full discretion as to using any of them. No employee of the Radiation firms is eligible to compete.

The results of the Competition will be published in this paper on July 10th next.

Mountaineering.

It is delightful in the extreme—soft, mild, warm and equable, just bracing enough without being cold—the mountains and the sea combine to make the climate cool, pleasant and exhilarating. On the hills one is never too far inland to miss the sea breezes and on the coast one is never out of sight of the mountains.

The mean winter temperature of many places on the North Wales Coast is higher than that of the South of England Coast Resorts. Delicate shrubs and plants—not elsewhere to be found in Great Britain growing out of doors—flourish in the open air the year through.

TOWARDS SETTLEMENT?

THE nation hopes that we may be moving slowly—side by side with our Allies—to a settlement of the reparations problem.

With every passing day it becomes clearer that Europe cannot afford to prolong the tension of the last few months. It is only too plain that the "settlement" designed by the Treaty of Versailles is gravely threatened.

The Bulgarian coup d'état, says a semi-official statement published yesterday, was effected with surprising ease and rapidity.

That is meant to be reassuring. But thinking people will only take the latest of "incidents" as one more proof that, for right or for wrong, the Governments that emerged from the war, or were constituted after it, are extraordinarily vulnerable—externally, from secret intrigue or open attack; internally, from revolution.

In this apparent welter a fixed point is, or should be, the close association of former allies who fought to "make the world safe."

Mr. Lloyd George has improved the week-end by reminding us that it is at present so far from safe that it is being "hurled forward by some dynamic force."

Since he has reverted to a position of greater freedom and less responsibility, Mr. Lloyd George is wonderfully assuaging and pacific. But, as we listen to his warnings and exhortations, we cannot forget that he, too, was, for years after the peace, a "dynamic force" that managed a fair amount of "hurting."

Was the Coalition peaceful? Did it promote a settlement in the Near East? And what about the cupidities excited by, and the promises broken since, the Treaty which the ex-Premier signed?

Unfortunately it is not enough to preach about peace. The difficulty is so to direct foreign policy as to secure it. This the Coalition dismally failed to do. We pray that Mr. Stanley Baldwin's solid sense, acting in concert with France and Belgium, may succeed better.

BEAUTY "FINALS."

OUR readers will to-day be asked to vote a stage further in the Beauty Competition which has aroused so much interest all over the country.

We have reached the "finalists" in the contest, and our photographic studies this morning show the ten competitors—boys and girls under five years—who have been selected by preliminary votes as near to the standard of perfection. Our next two special numbers will give pictures of "favourites" in the other sections, divided according to age.

Do not forget to record your vote, in order that the final choice may be representative of a widely-canvassed taste! And do not forget, either, that our competition includes a prize of £500 for the most accurate forecast of the three prizewinners, coupled with an estimate of the number of votes each will receive.

What distinguishes this competition from all others of the kind is precisely the opportunity it offers our readers to decide for themselves. We hope that all of them will record their votes.

IN MY GARDEN.

JUNE 11.—Roses are beginning to open, but unless summer weather arrives it will be a bad season for the queen of flowers. Among the earliest roses we have the interesting Rugosa kinds.

The single white and red sorts form large bushes, and are useful for growing as a hedge in the autumn the handsome red fruit makes a bright show. But perhaps the most valuable Rugosa rose is Conrad F. Meyer, a strong-growing variety.

Many beautiful climbers are out to-day—such as Carmine Pillar and Dawson Rose—while the delightful China (or monthly) roses begin to form mounds of colour. E. F. T.

THROUGH "THE MIRROR."

Women and Betting—What is "Respectability"?—Dowdy Cleverness—Pensions and Savings—Talk About Sport.

CLEVER—BUT DOWDY.

PROBABLY women who boast an intellect (if such women exist) dress in a dowdy way because they haven't "time" to think of such an insignificant detail. At any rate, that is always the excuse of clever men, and women invariably imitate the "magnificent male." MISPLACED GENIUS.

SPORT MANIACS.

HOW very true to life is Mr. Haselden's cartoon on the golfing maniac! Somehow golfers can talk of nothing but golf.

It is usually those who gossip about what they can do who can do very little, and I cannot help thinking that it is extremely selfish of people to boast of their sporting capabilities.

I know a young couple who broke off their engagement because the young man would talk

RACING WOMEN.

IF love of horseracing is inherent in women, as one of your correspondents asserts, it has lain dormant for a considerable number of years.

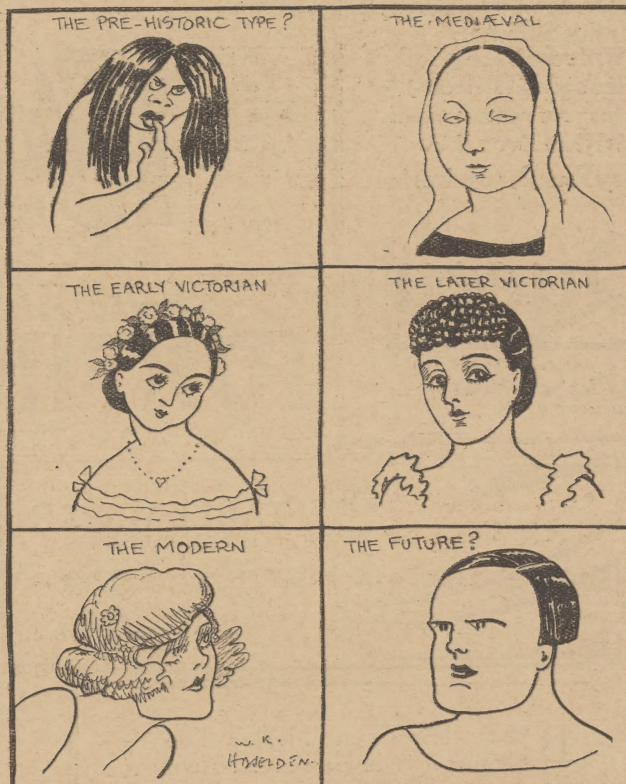

Only lately have they evinced any noticeable interest in the actual racing—they generally go to a meeting merely to see the dresses or to show off their own. RACEGOER.

A SPORTING SPIRIT.

POOR "Hen-Pecked Husband!" Let me assure him for his comfort that all wives do not retaliate on those who give them bad racing tips.

If I had not taken the advice of my husband (given him by a friend) I should have backed Papyrus and won £100. He advised me not,

BEAUTY TYPES ACROSS THE AGES.

Our first Special Beauty Number to-day may prompt some of us to contrast the good looks of the present with those of the past.

about his score in the cricket eleven, and she about her clothes. Both became dreadfully bored with one another's conversation. E. D. Baker-street, W.

"WHO IS RESPECTABLE?"

THE echoes from the forge of Longfellow's "Village Blacksmith" must, for the moment, have faded from "W. M.'s" memory when he wrote that: "The prompt payer belongs to an unhappy few of the small tribe of the uncomfortable elect."

With the ring of the hammer come the truer words:

And he looks the whole world in the face, For he owes not any man.

And the man who feels the sympathetic thrill of this finely-told truth is he who honestly pays what he owes when it is due, and who so makes it possible for the tradesman with whom he deals to discharge his own liabilities. W. H. P.

LOST DOGS.

WHY do people keep dogs if they don't care for them and don't look after them? It is heartrending to see the number of lost ones.

Dogs are taken to the park and lost in a crowd. One continually sees one trying to find a master or mistress, and often in vain. Two lost ones passed here last week, and we have a fox terrier found in this neighbourhood. We are taking care of it. As it has been reported at the police station, I hope inquiries will be made there, and it will be claimed. E. A. M.

31, Eaton-square, S.W.

and I backed Legality! But the only remark I made was "Put not your trust in horses." I call that fairly sportsmanlike, and wonder if "Hen-Pecked Husband" would have taken it so easily.

By the way, I'm a poor woman, and the £100 would have been more than useful. Honour to whom honour is due. A SPORTSWOMAN.

PENSIONS AND SAVINGS.

THE remarks of "A Civil Servant's Daughter" are proof positive that any pension fund that makes no allowance for a man's dependents is inadequate.

My employers, a large City firm, desiring to make some provision for the future of their employees, sought expert opinion as to the best means of doing so, and, as a result, they have instituted a scheme by which any member of their staff may, upon a mutual contributory basis, avail himself of the benefits of a life endowment assurance policy whereby, in the event of his demise, at any time, his dependents will become entitled to a substantial sum of money or, in the event of his attaining the age of sixty-five years, a similar amount will be placed at his disposal for the purchase of an annuity for himself and wife. W. G. T.

SHABBY HATS.

SHABBY hats need not be!

I met a beautiful light-grey soft felt out lately, and congratulated the wearer on it. He said, "But it isn't new! I have just had it turned and cleaned for the second time by —" naming a well-known hatter. H. B.

BATHS AS A SIGN OF CIVILISATION.

SHALL WE HAVE HOUSES FOR HEROES WHO DON'T WASH?

By ALAN HARRIS.

A SCHOOLMASTER of the last century, once definitely settled, as he thought, this question of baths. "One bath a week," he said, "is a necessity; two a luxury; three a superfluity."

His saying has won for him a comic niche in the temple of Fame.

We have long laughed at him confidently, as at a confessed absurdity, as obsolete as the muzzle-loading rifle; but our confidence has been premature. For a real and living member of Parliament has just assured us, with every appearance of seriousness, that all baths are a luxury.

He has recalled, regretfully, the old times when a man's only bath-days were the day of his birth and the day of his death, and both those were involuntary.

The Die-hards are trying to escape the obligation to put bathrooms into all subsidised houses. The only argument they can find is their perennial favourite: "Our fathers managed to do without."

It does not seem to occur to them that exactly the same argument might serve with exactly the same cogency to defend any form of barbarism one could imagine. Our forefathers may have washed less without perishing. They also, at various times, burnt witches, ate with their fingers, painted themselves blue and lived in caves.

IS IT A NECESSITY?

Applied vaguely, this argument is only silly; but when it is seriously urged, or implied, that washing is bad for health, it is extremely dangerous. There may be among doctors a few "cranks" who tell us we wash too much; but medical science in general is overwhelmingly against them. It is in medical science that our progress has been, on the whole, the least questionable; and there can be no doubt that the increase of personal cleanliness has contributed greatly to this improvement.

The attack on the bath-room is therefore a real national danger. It may be argued that one can wash without one; but clearly, the absence of it will encourage slackness. When one thinks of the old-fashioned horrors of the "tub" and the water-can, one can hardly be indignant with the weaker brethren.

The last resort of the Die-hards is always the contention that the working man usually uses his bath as a coal-cellar. It is about on a level with the argument of some hunting men that "the fox really likes it." Although it has been proved wrong over and over again, they cling to it with all the heroism of soldiers dying in the last ditch. In any case, even were it true, it does not improve matters to remove the bath. The man is no better at washing, while he has lost a place to put his coal.

But in fact, the improvement of the working man's standard in this respect has been remarkable. If it is important for the clerk to have a proper bath in his house, it is essential for the miner; and it is in the crowded houses of the working man that the inconveniences of the tub regime cause the greatest hardship.

Of course the whole appeal to the past is ridiculous. The plain truth is that the bath, which may have been a luxury once, is now a necessity. That is what civilisation means.

Mrs. Wade, of Henfield, the mother of the delightful little fellow here shown, writes: "Mellin's Food suits him so well—he prefers it to any other."

The Kensington WOOL WRAP

New 'Slip-on' shape

An entirely new idea—a combined
Wrap and Scarf—handy, cosy and exceedingly charming.

The idea is given in its first introduction to London by Pontings, at an amazingly low price.

THE high-grade wool is beautifully soft, and being brushed gives a most attractive fleecy effect. The garment folds flat and can be carried over the arm.

When sending an order by post give second choice of colour.

COLOURS

White/Jade,
White/Mauve,
White/Peacock,

TO-DAY'S GOSSIP

News and Views About Men, Women and Affairs in General

Lord Eversley, 92 today, and "Father" of the House of Lords, was married to Mr. Mrs. Eversley.

Miss Betty Marford, who will be one of the brides at the wedding of Lady and Mr. Camdens, is married today.

BEAUTIES OF 1923.

Three Choirs Festival—A Nature Preserve—Boom in Precious Stones.

BEAUTY COMPETITIONS organised by the Daily Mirror have always aroused widespread interest, but I have never known greater keenness than that evoked by the contest which today enters its final stage. It appeals to everyone. Even if one cannot be a "prize beauty," there is still the chance of winning a prize of £500 as a judge of beauty, by filing up the coupon printed in this issue. Are you competing?

Society at Cowes.

Captain the Hon. Dudley Carleton (whose pretty house near the Royal Yacht Squadron Castle, Cowes, was occupied during Cowes "Week" last year by Lady Glenanar and her son, Lord Glenanar) is in residence there himself at the moment, and others staying at Cowes include Sir Lancelot and Lady Rolleston, the Hon. Cecil Parker and Lord Arthur Grosvenor, who are all guests of Elizabeth, Marchioness of Ormonde at Solent Lodge.

Diamonds and Prohibition.

There is a brisk revival of trade in diamonds, and one of the reasons suggested for this is that now people no longer spend money on wine in America they have more to spend on jewellery. The U.S. has always been the biggest diamond buying country, but merchants who used to deal only in the highest grade stones are buying the second quality, or "spotted" stones, to meet the demands of a cheaper trade.

Wedding Ring Fashion.

Very small brilliants have become scarce, and have risen in price from 15 to 20 per cent. during the last few months. This may be due to the new taste for platinum wedding rings set all round with tiny diamonds.

Rarest of Stones.

Emeralds, the rarest of precious stones, are gradually becoming scarcer, the decrees of fashion of late having caused a large inroad upon the already low stocks existing. A transaction in London running into large figures was recently spoken of, in which a diamond firm completed the purchase of an important shipment of emeralds, but otherwise there seem to exist practically no stocks of this stone in any quantity or variety.

Toothache on the Film.

To-day the Duchess of Portland is holding a Reception at Australia House, prior to the showing of the Ivory Cross Dental Film. This film explains the formation of teeth, and un-masks the throbbing nerve which causes toothache. A good many people will be pleased to see a picture of this little fellow. The Ivory Cross people produced the film for propaganda purposes.

Scott Head.

Yesterday Lord Ullswater received on behalf of the National Trust the deeds of Scolt Head, an island on the Norfolk coast, standing between Burnham and Bawsey, and consisting of the highest sand dunes on the East Coast. Through the efforts of the Norfolk and Norwich Naturalists' Society it is to be preserved in a natural state, and the land having been purchased from Lord Leicester, a trust has been formed to look after it.

Bird Paradise.

Scolt Head has an area of 1,200 acres, and the only habitation on it is a small wooden bungalow. There are five species of sea lavender growing on the island, and many rarely seen birds nest in the dunes. There is a colony of the Sandwich tern, whilst redhanks, meadow pipits, and pied wagtails abound.

Lord Ullswater.

Dressing Up.

Although fancy dress balls are not very popular nowadays, Lady Cunard is going to give one on Friday, and hopes to be able to induce all those she has invited to dress themselves up. But people are very lazy to-day, and I am wondering how it will succeed! When Lady Cunard was personally interested in Covent Garden Opera, under Sir Thomas Beecham, she got up a very successful one there—but it was very hard work!

Strange Dinners.

The late Pierre Loti was very fond of entertaining his friends to strange and out-of-the-way repasts. On one occasion he gave a Louis XI. fête at which two of the guests figured as a court jester and a court physician respectively, while one of the dishes consisted of roasted peacock. Another Chinese dinner of his ordering included birds' nest soup and sharks' fins on toast.

Pierre Loti.

Pierre Loti's penname was originally a nickname. When he was a midshipman a Tahitian girl called him Roti, because his cheeks were so delightfully rosy. But Roti became Loti, because the Polynesians are unable to pronounce the letter "r"; and when the midshipman became an author he decided to adopt the nickname as a pseudonym. Roti, of course, would not have done, because that is the French for "roast beef."

Three Choirs.

Sir Ivor Atkins is hard at work on the famous Three Choirs Festival, which takes place at Worcester the first week in September. This will be the seventh festival which Sir Ivor has conducted, and his many friends in the county, where he is enormously popular, are hoping that the festival will be the most memorable in the history of Worcester festivals.

Sir Ivor Atkins.

which have previously only been heard rendered by small cathedral choirs. Music-lovers will realise at Worcester for the first time how inherently great the music is.

Bishop as Chorister.

Last Monday Mr. Arnold Bax went to Worcester to listen to the first rehearsal of his work, "To the Name above every Name," and the Bishop of Worcester, who is singing tenor in the chorals, made a special journey from Hartlebury in order to be present.

Collected Conrad.

The announcement that a uniform edition of the writings of Joseph Conrad is about to be published will be welcomed by all book-lovers. It is now twenty-eight years since Mr. Conrad's first novel, "Almayer's Folly," was published. To-day first editions of his novels are in great demand.

A Life on the Ocean Wave.

Conrad, whose real name is Teodor Jozef Konrad Korzeniowski, was born in Poland in 1857. At the age of seventeen he went to sea, but it was not until 1878 that he landed in England, at Lowestoft. At that time he did not know a single word of the English language, but five months later he joined an Australia-bound vessel as a sailor before the mast.

Noah on the Stage.

The patriarch Noah will appear as a figure in English drama for the first time to-day, when Mr. Geoffrey Whitworth's "Father Noah" will be produced at a special matinee at the Savoy. The play, which is in unrhymed verse, was published in book form in 1918, and the scene is laid in the hold of the Ark.

Asparagus and Strawberries.

The lack of sunshine has upset the calculations of the English asparagus growers. A vision of beautiful crops has faded away. The strawberry beds, too, present a sorry sight. I saw some yesterday and the berries were large but green. I am told that unless there is more sun they will soon begin to rot.

To-day's Wedding.

The Hon. Diamond Hardinge's wedding to-day will be a blue and white one, for her bridesmaids are to be dressed in white, her pages in pale blue, and she herself is having a pale blue lining to her cloth of silver train. Captain Douglas Hope is supplying the bridesmaids with sheaves of blue delphiniums, and the bride has chosen lilies of the valley for herself.

Princess Maud.

Princess Maud is sure to be much missed by her mother. The two were like sisters, as I have seen them going round the West End shops, quite unguessed at by the crowd. Inseparables, it is little wonder that the Princess has been in no haste to marry.

Happy Trio.

Before the wedding of her sister, Princess Arthur of Connaught, Princess Maud was often to be seen with her and her mother—the happiest looking trio imaginable. The Princess Royal has her mother's (Queen Alexandra) gift of youth, with her girlish face and figure, and her daughters take after her.

Birthdays.

Lord Eversley is ninety-two to-day. He is "Father" of the House of Lords. Last year the reference books gave him as ninety; but a member of the family tells me this was incorrect. The Earl of Yarborough was sixty-four yesterday. A keen sportsman and Master of the Brocklesby Hounds, the Earl is popular in the County of Lincolnshire, where he owns 56,000 acres.

From Town to Country.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Rose have sold their delightful London house in Green-street, one having an old English garden with sundial and fountain, and are going to live in the country in future, at Wytham Abbey, a fine old stone house on the Thames, with handsome embattled gateway and grand woods. Mrs. Rose, a very attractive woman, is one of the Traitors of Wroxham Hall, Norfolk.

Lady Butt, who is married to Alfred Butt, the theatrical manager, and M.P. for the Hamam, is married today. She is much interested in politics.

Miss Olga N. Persole, who will make her reappearance at the stage at Vandam's Theatre on July 3 at a League of Health, is married today.

Countess Vocalist.

The Earl of Westmorland's stepmother will make her first essay on the professional stage next Monday at the Coliseum, for, as she plainly states, she "needs to augment a small income." She does not wish to be referred to as the Douglas Countess, but prefers to be called Catherine, Countess of Westmorland.

After Dinner.

People laughed at Mr. Douglas Sladen when he founded the After-Dinner Club for "Conversation," but it has survived and flourishes. To-morrow evening at the Suffolk Galleries it celebrates the tercentenary of the First Folio of Shakespeare. Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Basil Gill, William Peel, Dame May Whitty, Miss Lena Ashwell, and Mr. Charles Fry will be among the guests.

Cricket Revival.

There is, despite the lawn tennis boom, a revival of cricket. Village clubs are forming again, and, while country house cricket has lapsed, people are taking a greater interest in the county club. This is Husham "Week," and yesterday the picturesque ground presented an animated spectacle.

Village Representatives.

The green field is enclosed with a wall of white canvas, and inside there are decorations and a number of tea stalls representing various villages in the neighbourhood. Among the stallholders were Lady Dunning, who has a house at Lower Beeding, and Lady Blake, from Ruspur.

£500 for a Name

J. S. FRY & SONS, LTD. (BRISTOL & LONDON). NAME COMPETITION.

After almost 200 years in Bristol FRY'S now find that their well-known business of Cocoa and Chocolate Manufacturers has grown to such dimensions that the old city can no longer accommodate it. A site of nearly 300 acres has, therefore, been bought at Keynsham, five miles from Bristol, to afford scope for the larger developments necessary.

The site, bordered by the River Avon, lies in the green and pleasant county of Somerset, and there is ample room, not only for factories, wharves, and sidings, but also for playing fields, bathing pools and sports grounds.

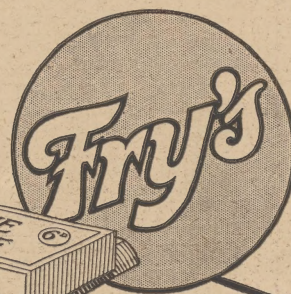

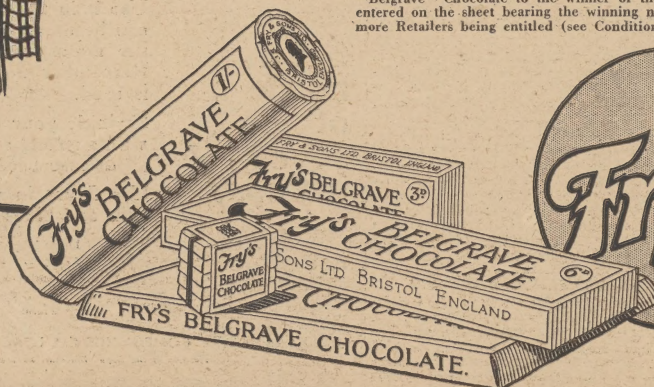

The erection there of the first of the great factories is nearing completion and now the Company want a NAME for the new site itself. A prize of £500 is offered for a suitable name, which should preferably be brief, easy to pronounce, striking and unique, and which might for example, suggest the ideal surroundings of the new site. There will also be awarded boxes of Chocolates as 1,000 Consolation prizes.

Read the Conditions of Entry and send in suggestions as soon as possible and so as to arrive not later than twelve noon on Tuesday, 14th August, 1923.

CONDITIONS OF ENTRY

(WHICH MUST BE STRICTLY COMPLIED WITH).

1. The £500 prize will be awarded to the sender of the name deemed most suitable, but Fry's do not bind themselves to use the name for which the prize is awarded. In the event of the most suitable name being sent in by more than one Competitor, the prize will be divided. The winning name will be published in the Press.
  2. Competitors may send in as many suggested names as they wish, but each suggested name must be accompanied by the red outside wrapper or wrappers from a packet or packets of Fry's "Belgrave" Chocolate—sold in Neapolitans, Croquettes, Flat Cakes and Bundles—to the value of 6d.; that is, for instance, four 1d., three 2d., or two 3d. wrappers count for one suggested name, and a 1½ wrapper counts for two, or a 1/3 and 3d. wrapper combined count for three suggested names. In other words, every sixpennyworth of "Belgrave" Chocolate counts for one chance.
  3. Each suggested name must be written plainly in capital letters on a separate sheet of paper, with the name and address of the Competitor, together with the name and address of the Retailer (i.e., the person, firm, or company owning the establishment, or employing the person) selling the "Belgrave" Chocolate to such Competitor.
  4. All entries will receive strict scrutiny, so as to ensure fairness in awarding prizes.
  5. The decision of the Board of Directors of J. S. Fry & Sons, Ltd., certified by the Company's Secretary, as to the prize awards, or as to any other matter relating to this competition, shall be accepted as final and binding by the Competitors, who shall only enter the competition on that footing.
  6. All envelopes (properly stamped if sent by post) containing the suggested names must be addressed "J. S. Fry & Sons, Ltd., 2, Union Street, Bristol," and be marked "Name," and must arrive at that address not later than twelve noon on 14th August, 1923.
  7. Fry's will not be responsible for any suggested name being lost, mislaid, or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery or receipt.
  8. Letters must not be enclosed with suggested names, and no correspondence will be entered into regarding the prize awards, or this competition, or anything connected therewith.
  9. No one in the employment of the Company is eligible for the competition.
- NOTE TO THE TRADE. An award of £50 will be made to the Retailer who sold the "Belgrave" Chocolate to the winner of the £500 prize, and whose name and address are entered on the sheet bearing the winning name (see Condition 3). In the event of two or more Retailers being entitled (see Condition 1), the £50 will be divided.

WHY A WOMAN SHOULD NEVER USE A RAZOR

In youth the hair on a man's face is fine, soft and downy, but after he commences to use a razor it becomes stiff, coarse and wiry. A razor stimulates hair-growth just as trimming a hedge makes it grow faster and thicker. This is why ladies using a razor to remove unwanted hair find the hair constantly returning more rapidly and more thickly than before. In spite of this, until the discovery of Veet cream, ladies have been obliged to resort to a razor or to cutting, irritating depilatories to remove superfluous hair. The burning Barium Sulphide in ordinary depilatories causes salivary irritation, soreness and skin blemishes. Veet cream does not contain any Barium Sulphide or other poisonous chemical. It has no offensive odour. Whereas razors and ordinary depilatories only remove hair above the skin surface, Veet melts the hair away beneath it. Veet is as easy and pleasant to use as a face-cream. You simply spread it on just as it comes from the tube, wait a few minutes, then wash off and the hair is gone as if by magic. Entirely satisfactory results guaranteed in every case, or money is returned. All Chemists, Hairdressers and Stores supply Veet at 3/6. ## VEET

A CREAM THAT REMOVES HAIR TOO MANY HOME CARES. For Worried Wives and Mothers.

Housewives' work makes greater demands on their vitality than men realise, and there is always something more to do. When the breadwinner has finished, the housewife begins afresh. No wonder women's backs ache, and their nerves are worn out—some of them! No wonder they get depressed and irritable, suffer from headaches, and always feel out of sorts. But all women are not like that: what is the difference?

A woman with plenty of healthy, red blood in her veins finds work in the home easy. She asks for no pity: her vitality is always up. This points the way to health for the others. Make new blood: you can do it with Dr. Williams' pink pills. These pills have the marvellous property of renewing the blood and toning up the nerves.

Your improved appetite and digestion will promptly show the effect of Dr. Williams' pink pills. Your fatigue and your backache, your headaches and depression will vanish. You will find a new joy in living. Do not delay: ask your chemist for Dr. Williams' pink pills, or send 3s. 0d. for a box, post free, to address below. They are good for men too.

FREE—Every woman should read the booklet, "Nature's Warnings," sent free to all who write to Booklet Dept., 36, Fitzroy Square, London, W.1. (Adv't.)

Are You Too Fat?

TRY THIS SIMPLE HARMLESS REMEDY. No Dieting, No Laborious Exercises.

Superfluous flesh is not healthy, neither is it safe to diet or exercise too much for its removal. The simplest, most effective remedy for over-fatness, Marmola Prescription Tablets, prepared in exact doses according to the famous Marmola prescription, is a remedy that is harmless, entails no dieting or exercises and, in addition, helps the digestive organs to convert food into muscle, bone and sinew instead of undesirable fat. Marmola Prescription Tablets 3/- per packet of all Chemists or direct from: Marmola Co. (Dept. 101), 86, Clerkenwell Road, London, E.C.1.

AN INTELLIGENT WOMAN

Tells How She Darkened Her Grey Hair with a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Books, who darkened her grey hair by a simple home-made remedy, made the following statement:—

"Any lady or gentleman can darken their grey or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy with this simple remedy which they can mix at home. To half-a-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and 1 ounce of Glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any chemist's at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the grey hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not colour the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a grey-haired person look twenty years younger.—(Adv't.)"

Vanities for Women

PEARLS & PLATINUM—NOSE BAGS FOR POWDER-PUFFS

DO you wear an armlet? It is the very newest idea in jewellery and destined to wear with our sleeveless frocks.

PEARLS AND PLATINUM.

By means of narrow barbroches attached on either side of the armhole, two slender strings of platinum fall across the upper part of the arm. The chains are set with pearls, and swinging from the centre is a diamond-shaped pearl and black onyx pendant. If you can't aspire to pearls and platinum, cheaper varieties are, of course, to be obtained.

LATEST IN PUFFS.

Powder-puffs appear in some fresh and novel guise every day—or at least they seem to, and the latest idea is a miniature Dorothy bag of the finest rubber in which to carry this absolutely indispensable little article. The bags are ever so prettily coloured, and the mouth pulls up in the shape of a much-petalled flower.

ITS REAL USE.

The rubber powder bag was devised, I fancy, for hygienic reasons, but I can see a far more romantic use being put to it. We'll buy one to match our newest bathing suit and the accompanying irresponsible little flowered or winged cap. Then, having slung it from our wrist, we'll be able to do our nose-powdering in mid-ocean with the greatest comfort.

SUMMER WEAR.

Do you know what looks the coolest wear on a broiling hot day? (Let us, just for fun, imagine there will be some such days this summer.) White, black, only it.

For those who cannot afford to go quite, let me advocate black voile. It sounds very ordinary, I know, but you've no idea how attractive it can look over a white slip or, for variation, a flesh pink or a good black satin Princess petticoat. One I saw recently was entirely self-trimmed in that crisp-cross lattice-work design, a band of it appearing round the hips under the low pouched blouse, and also round the neck and short sleeves.

Pin your faith to a short coat of some figured or embroidered material, and you can't go wrong.

PHILIDA.

Just the frock for Ascot is this lovely lace affair with its spray of hand-made flowers placed at the waist and set off by a wide-brimmed feather-trimmed hat. —(Lucile.)

HELICOPTER PUZZLE.

Nations' Rivalry to Gain Secrets of the Air.

DANGERS OF FALLING.

The greatest battle of wits the air world has ever seen is, writes an expert, now at its height. The struggle, secret in its character, and of international importance, is to be the first to put those finishing touches to the helicopter, or vertical-flight air machine, which will render it a practical proposition either for military or civil use.

The Americans, both in France, America and Britain, are now working at the highest pitch, and in the friendliest rivalry, to be first to astonish the world with a helicopter that shall triumphantly overcome all the technical difficulties which still remain a bar to complete success.

What is baffling the finest brains at present is the question of changing from vertical to horizontal flight when the helicopter is high in the air, and of maintaining the equilibrium of the machine when it is in rapid horizontal flight.

Another formidable problem is that of preventing a big, weight-carrying helicopter from falling should its engine plant fail suddenly while it is aloft.

Our secret official work, prosecuted so far with very great success, is now concentrated upon imparting to the helicopter a power of swift point-to-point flight.

The Americans, in secret tests with two machines, claim that in one case an apparatus of theirs has moved at a slow pace, and at a low altitude, right across a big aerodrome, and has manoeuvred from side to side as freely as an aeroplane.

In another trial one of their official weight-lifting helicopters is said to have raised itself from the ground bearing a pilot and four passengers.

France is absorbed by the problem of the safe descent of the helicopter when its power-plant fails.

SEAPORT TRAGEDY.

Man Who Was Gassed Shoots Girl and Then Himself.

After wounding a servant girl with a shotgun, William Ronald Tavenor, aged thirty-two, son of a publican, of Cremilly, Plymouth, shot himself. Tavenor is stated to have been suffering from the result of wounds and gas received during the war. The girl's injuries are not serious.

700-YEAR-OLD FIND.

Norman Doorway Discovered During Repairs to Yorkshire Church.

During progress of the preservation work now going on at the ancient parish church of St. Hilda, Whitby, North Yorkshire, which dates from 1120, the pillars of an original doorway were exposed after having been blocked up over a century ago.

They were in splendid preservation, and after other stones were removed the capitals and the arch of the beautiful original Norman doors were exposed.

The church adjoins the ancient abbey of Whitby, the original of which was founded in 660. This is also being restored.

PAID AFTER 20 YEARS.

Waitress Who Provided Dinner for Visitors When They Were Hungry.

The proprietor of a restaurant at Skegness has just received payment for a meal served twenty years ago.

In those days it was difficult for a casual visitor to obtain a meal in Skegness on a Sunday, and the sender of the remittance, recalling this fact, states that he and a friend, now dead, were at their wit's end to obtain food, when a waitress at the restaurant took pity on them.

She served them from the dinner reserved for the boarders, and refused to take any payment.

SALVING LOST LINER.

Wrecked Egypt Located After a Month's Strenuous Search.

After nearly a month's salvage work, the wreck of the P. and O. liner Egypt, which was sunk off Ushant in May of last year, following a collision, is believed to have been located.

The rights to save the hullion on the sunken vessel were acquired by Mr. C. I. Sandberg, consulting engineer, of Grosvenor-gardens, S.W., and Mr. J. Swinburne and the Gothenburg Towage and Salvage Company are associated with them in connection with the operations.

Mr. Sandberg yesterday stated that the company's vessel Triton and two steam trawlers have been successful in locating what appears to be the wreck of the Egypt.

Preparations of the appliances necessary for the saving of the hullion on board the Egypt will now be put in hand, but it is anticipated that it will be some little time before these can be completed.

MYSTERY M.P.'s BOOK.

Story That Tells of First Women's Government.

CIVIL SERVICE ROMANCE.

Who is the mysterious member of Parliament who has written "When Woman Rules," published by John Long, and which is described as "a tale of the first women's Government by a well-known member of Parliament?"

If many of the opinions expressed in this book may be taken as indicative of his (or her) policy, there seems to be very little doubt that the author is a member of the Labour Party. The novel would have been better named "Love in the Civil Service," for it is written round a young man and a young woman whose affection for each other was temporarily embarrassed by the gossip and scandal which is, apparently, directed against all persons who commit the sin of conceiving an affection for each other during office hours.

It would be unfair to divulge the plot of the story, except that during the development of the plot a woman's Government is formed with a woman Prime Minister at its head.

As a novel it is a distinctly interesting piece of work, but the idea has enormous possibilities.

SON'S REPENTANCE.

Withdraws False Charge Against Father in Whisky Case.

How accusations by a youth against his father, which led to the latter's arrest, were dramatically withdrawn, was told in Glasgow Sheriff's Court yesterday when William McDonald, jun. (sixteen), was fined £20 for receiving seventy-nine bottles of whisky.

It was stated that the whisky disappeared from a boat in the docks, and as a result of information given to the police McDonald's father was taken into custody.

There had been disputes between the two, but young McDonald afterwards repented and stated to the prosecutor that what he had said about his father had been said in a spirit of revenge, and he himself had really received the whisky.

METHYLATED SPIRITS CRIME.

For the murder of Mrs. Jennina Nicholson, John Henry Savage, a marine fireman, was executed at Edinburgh yesterday. It was stated at the trial that Savage, who had been in the habit of drinking methylated spirits, called on the woman, who was later found murdered.

THE LITTLE LADY

By ERIC MAXWELL

More anemones came from the Villa Isadore, but no letter. The Little Lady searched breathlessly through every basket, but Mr. Champion was dumb.

HOW THE STORY BEGAN.

IN Carnival-street, London, W. is—or was—the flower shop known as Fleurette & Cie., tenanted by Barbara Crane, the orphan daughter of a lieutenant-colonel who had died during the war. Barbara is aided in her business by Alec, a snub-nosed, freckled boy, and she cherishes the friendship of Peter Cowdry, nephew of Lady Parminster, into whose set Barbara foolishly allowed herself to be drawn before choosing the way of independence. It was during that period of irresponsibility that Barbara met Maurice van Rekken, a wealthy worldly man, who endeavoured to force his love upon her. The memory of that experience has always sent a shudder through the Little Lady since. Still, Van Rekken is believed to have died abroad some three years ago, and Barbara is quite happy in her flourishing business and in Peter's comradeship. He has twice proposed, but the Little Lady has gently refused him. One night when Peter is supping with her Maurice van Rekken returns unexpectedly—back from the dead! He greets Barbara familiarly, and Peter, assuming he is not wanted, leaves. Later she meets Peter while on a shopping expedition and he practically cuts her. In a basket of flowers received from a flower farm in the South of France, Barbara comes upon a letter written by the proprietor, an Englishman. He is desperately lonely and, after another humiliating scene with Van Rekken, she conceives the plan of going out to join him, hoping thereby to comfort him and to forget some of her painful memories.

HER NEW LIFE.

WALLOWING in the warmth of that narrow and rust-stained bath which she shared with the married couple on the first floor of No. 87, Carnival-street, the Little Lady arranged with herself to call this exodus a holiday. That would be excuse enough to Claire Parminster and Janet. She wasn't so sure of what she should say to Peter Cowdry or to Alec, for the strange, clean manliness of them both challenged any effort of deception.

So, "Alec," she said later, wandering into the shop where he stood comically drawing the juice from a small and shrivelled tomato, "I am going away—for how long I can't say. It may be weeks, or even months. I'm not certain who I ought to get to look after the shop."

At this he opened his mouth wide and let fall the skin from between his lips.

"Ere, Miss Barbara, if you goes away I looks after the shop. I knows yer little ways an' the customers know me. What could be fairer'n that."

"But, Alec, how can I—"

"Sooner'n have a stranger messin' about, I'd 'and in my resig. Honestly, I would," he pronounced with enormous seriousness; and then, seeing the troubled eyes: "Anything wrong, Miss Barbara? Are you sort of afraid of anything?"

"A little frightened, perhaps, Alec," she replied. "And running away to recover from a shock."

"Mr. Cowdry goin' with you?" She shook her head, scarcely able to keep her lips from trembling. "No, Alec. But I might write to him and ask him to look in here occasionally to see how you're getting on."

"Then you'll let me manage?" he gasped in ill-concealed delight. "I will. But don't look so happy about it, or I'll think you're glad to be getting rid of me."

"Oh, miss," he reproached her, "how can you?"

(All the characters in this story are fictitious. Translation, dramatic and all other rights reserved.)

She moved about her morning routine in order to keep those wayward thoughts of hers in check. She then drove Henry slowly to a Covent Garden market gay with the spring. When she told Ginoletto of her projected departure, he suspected nothing, simply showing a row of white teeth and gazing with admiration at her tense little figure.

"That will be excellent for the health of the Signorina," My Seraphina said. But a few days since that the Signorina had the air of a tired lady. In the South she will be restored to life by the sunning and the flowers. "I shall see them growing," the Little Lady declared in delight. This escape was assuming the gaiety of a holiday.

"If the Signorina crosses the frontier she will always find hospitality in my country, and if she by chance goes to Annotto, in the Campagna, she must be sure to buy a candle in the Church of the Madonna di Lagtime."

She promised and, after leaving instructions with the Italian and her other dealers, drove out of the market area to the Continental Booking Company.

She had once heard Peter Cowdry recommend that vast and much-maligned continent, and to consult its opinion now seemed almost like taking Peter's advice on a difficult point. She would not let fall any link with Peter. She wanted him now more than anyone else in the world.

As she stood at the long counter strewn with fantastic prospectuses of foreign health resorts, she felt almost capable of consulting its opinion now seemed almost like taking Peter's advice on a difficult point. She would not let fall any link with Peter. She wanted him now more than anyone else in the world.

He drew forth blue tickets, yellow tickets and green tickets, clipped them into a dazzling pink cover, handed her a minute time-table to trains and steamers, accepted her money, presented her with French money and wished her a good crossing—all in the voice of a stage Yankee, one of those bearded men who wander into the drawing-rooms of farces and exclaim: "Wal, bo!"

The Little Lady liked him. He was so contemptuous of the difficulties of travel. Names of extremely foreign places dripped like honey from his tongue. He was possessed of seven-leagued boots which took him almost in a stride from one end of Europe to the other.

The apparatus of travel excited the Little Lady in the same way that her first toy had done. She had to show them all to Alec—the passport that she had obtained a year or two ago when the Parminsters had contemplated a raid on the Continent, her volume of tickets, her steamer berth, her hundred-franc notes, her list of trains.

"I am crossing to-night from Southampton," she exclaimed to the gaping ginger-headed boy, "because it makes a longer sea voyage, you see, and I rather think I'm going to like the sea."

She found herself talking like a seasoned traveller, bringing out place names in her best school accent, explaining, almost boasting.

"You did ought to be careful, Miss Barbara," said Alec. "I don't like to see you goin' to foreign parts, as unprotected as if it was South-end. And what mother'll say when I tell her at dinner-time, I don't know!"

She reassured him as to her ability to fend for herself and sent him back to the shop, where several impatient customers were knocking on the counter.

There was so much to do and so little time in which to do it—the bank to interview, a letter to be sent to Peter Cowdry, a general settling-up of affairs, a packing, a labelling and a taking care that nothing essential was left behind.

Then, of course, the little frock had to be mended. She would need that, if nothing else, on this foolish, unplanned venture into a new world of sunshine.

With quick and certain stitches she mended the torn strap and set the silver panner in place. Unlike most of the business of packing, the time was very little to be compressed into the horse-hair trunk. Only underclothes and the little blue velvet dress, toilet intricacies, one or two nice books, the Parminster gown—and the green apron.

Some touch of conscience drove her to include that badge of servitude, as if she were playing false to her calling of flower-selling and in some strange way compromised with the offended trade by taking with her its diminutive uniform.

THE LADY DEPARTS.

AFTER a lunch so small as to be hardly noticeable, she drew out a box of writing paper and a twopenny inkpot. There was that letter to be written to Peter, a difficult letter, which meant half an hour's chewing of the pen and half an hour's frenzied crossing-out. At length it was written in her fair round hand and she read it through once more to test its fitness.

Dearest Old Peter.—Please don't think that I am trying to get round you by writing. I should never dream of doing such a thing. You did quite right, Peter, according to your impressions, only I have my doubts as to their correctness.

"I did not see you at your estimable aunt's party—but whose fault was that? What I really mean to say is that I am going away, abroad, and leaving Fleurette in charge of Alec. He is rather a young person to run the business on his own, but his mother assures me that responsibility will do him good and that she will look in from time to time to see how things are going on."

"That's what I want you to do, Peter. Just to look in occasionally. It would be very kind of you to pay the bills for me and to see that Alec understands running the mill of the business."

"I think that the business should be kept alive, old Peter—if only as a sort of monument to my ambition. People may come in half a century's time and stand outside, shaking their heads and saying: 'Ah, poor Barbara Crane!'"

"Your aunt's dance was very sumptuous. The second-best people were all there. But something happened which has driven me away for a time. If you have the intuition of a goose, Peter, you'll realise what it was—and curse yourself for a fool. But if you don't trouble to find out, I bear you no malice."

"We had a merry friendly time, you and I. I can't help thinking of us standing in the yard and turning the silver in our—your—pockets. The good luck has not been particularly immediate or striking. Nothing to signify, Peter—Yours, Barbara."

Very thoughtfully as she licked the envelope she was wondering just what effect this elaborately indifferent epistle would have upon Peter. Sad to relate, she feared that it might have no effect.

Alec was instructed to post the letter on his way home. All afternoon he was full of news of the sensation caused in home circles by this sudden departure of the Little Lady. His father had been "blowed," his mother not surprised at any mad decision of a young lady so far unconscious of her class as actually to take delight in "trade."

"Does she think it's little dangerous for you to be left all alone, Alec?"

He scratched his head and sulked. "I told you after dinner hour, Miss, that she said as responsibility 'nd do me good. Not as I'll 'ave much of that," he added bitterly. "She'll be poppin' round every minute or two, as like as not box my ears before the customers. I can see I'm goin' to 'ave a difficult time."

"And what about the girl at the dairy, Alec? Won't she look more favourably upon you now that you're in charge of a shop?"

"I'm thinkin' so," he murmured, pointlessly shifting a fern and restoring it to its former position.

These days there was a boom in anemones.

They flaunted their banners in almost every window in Carnival-street.

More came from the Villa Isadore, but no letter. The Little Lady searched breathlessly through every basket, but Mr. Champion was dumb, and only her own eyes' evidence could tell her how he fared.

As the hours went by and the decisive moment of departure drew nearer through the spring evening, the complexion of the Little Lady's journey began to alter. Once it had been a flight from something of the past, a grim pursuing spectre. Now it was a voyage towards something in the future.

The old order of life was dead to her, killed by the grip of Van Rekken's fingers. The new life, though only dimly outlined as yet, showed as something fair and vital, a procession of hours through a meadowland of flowers beneath a sky reminiscent of a railway poster recommending Rapallo.

After tea Alec left for the market, on some belated errand. When he came back it was almost half-past seven, and the Little Lady had dined in Baker-street and returned to get her belongings in order. The boy brought from Signor Ginoletto, that gay and gallant man, an enormous bunch of carnations, interspersed with sprays of asparagus fern.

"A good omen," she said, burying her hot face in their damp beauty. Written on a little coarse label were the words: Buon fortuna.

A moment later Alec ran to Baker-street for a taxi, and returned promptly and dancingly on its splash board. He hauled the brown-leop trunk to the door, and brought out the long grey coat on which the Little Lady had decided in preference to her rather demode Kolinsky.

"Good-bye, Alec," she cried, peering from the window. "Look after things. Mr. Cowdry will help you and your mother. Remember me to everyone in Portwine Mews. When I come back I hope to find everything all right and the business a growing concern."

"Good-bye, miss." The freckled boy blinked at a tear.

The taxi grunted and bounded suddenly forward. The Little Lady watched Alec's wildly waving arms as long as she might. She saw the dentist's windows whizz by as she passed on her way. A last glimpse of the little red shop beneath the lamp light, a boy's figure queerly graceful and touching, an arch of stars, and the car had turned the corner.

But even when she found herself in the hollow vault of Waterloo, amidst the shunting of porters and the whisper of big trains, she could not forget that last glimpse of a two years' happiness.

For the first time it is now possible for the sufferer from this most painful and dangerous ailment to go about in perfect comfort, and at the same time to so strengthen the parts that a complete and permanent cure is ultimately assured.

NO PAIN OR PRESSURE.

As Mr. Cooper, the inventor, says, "Every sufferer from Varicose Veins knows only too well the clumsy and painful nature of the ordinary elastic stocking, but few realise that there is a grave danger in wearing these appliances."

"Ordinary elastic stockings are made with harsh, coarse ribs at the back and sides and these constantly pressing upon the distended blood vessels, may at any moment set up inflammation and ulceration, and thus cause the Varicose Veins to burst."

"Now, however, by my wonderful new 'Spirastie' method the hard dangerous seams of the old-fashioned elastic stockings are entirely abolished, and perfect comfort and support is given to the limbs."

FITS LIKE A GLOVE.

The new Mecca "Spirastie Supports," as clearly shown in the accompanying illustration, are worn on a similar principle to "puttees," which any ex-Serviceman will tell you are the only possible leg supports for long marches. Fitting with the softness of a kid glove, they neither press, pinch nor cut the limb, nor do they wrinkle or lose their elasticity. They cost no more than the ordinary hard-ribbed stockings, will last at least three times as long, and moreover are sent ON APPROVAL.

ILLUSTRATED PARTICULARS FREE.

If therefore you suffer from Varicose Veins, loss of Power in the Legs, Weak Knees, Swollen Ankles, Pain when walking or standing or Ulcerated Limbs, write at once to Mr. Cooper on the Coupon below for free illustrated booklet fully describing this wonderful invention. Immediately you receive it you will realise why the Mecca "Spirastie Supports" give greater comfort and freedom from pain and eventually effect a complete and permanent cure.

BRIGHTON'S GAY REVELS.

King Carnival's Entry To-morrow—"Daily Mirror" Pets at Matinee.

To-morrow afternoon King Carnival enters upon what promises to be a triumphal career at Brighton. He will make his entry, surrounded by courtiers, preceded by fairylike nymphs, on Madeira Drive, a fine stretch of promenade.

The carnival will include a battle of flowers, followed by a Spanish bullfight on the Pavilion lawn, public dancing on Madeira Drive, and an All-Nations ball in the Royal Pavilion.

Pip, Squeak and Wilfred, The Daily Mirror pets, who will take a prominent part in the carnival, are announced to appear at a dancing display to be given before near 3,000 children in the afternoon at the Grand Theatre by pupils of Miss Egerton Welch.

There are many visitors in the town, which has been gaily decorated.

MAN SUES BROTHER.

'Blackmail' Story in Strange Libel Suit.

"TO SAVE MY HONOUR."

A dispute between two brothers, one of whom is alleged to have accused the other of blackmailing a third brother, was heard in the King's Bench Division yesterday.

Mr. Ernest William Mansell, of Holmeford, Bromley-road, Shortlands, Kent, sued Mr. Alfred William Mansell, of Beechurst, Brighton-road, Sutton, for libel. They are the sons of Mr. H. J. Mansell, cardboard box manufacturer, who died in 1918.

"This man seeks to prove that his brother should stand in the dock," said Mr. Patrick Hastings, K.C., opening the case for Mr. E. W. Mansell.

The defence was a denial of the meaning attached to the words complained of, and it was also said that the words in their natural meaning were true in substance and in fact.

The father, said Mr. Hastings, carried on business as Conitts and Co., in Golden-lane, City, with a third brother, Harry Mansell—the brother whom Ernest was alleged to have blackmailed.

The year before the death of the father the profits of the business were stated to be £41,000, and he left £10,000 to each of his children.

Mr. Ernest Mansell, who is an art printer, in the box, said that shortly before his death his father told him that the profits had increased from £21,000 to £41,000.

Speaking of an interview mentioned by Mr. Patrick Hastings, Mr. Ernest Mansell said that his brother Harry had put forward a claim with regard to property tax, and had said that he would go to law about it.

"I then told him," said Mr. E. Mansell, "that if he went to law he would go to prison. My honour is at stake."

He was, he said, warning his brother that if he went to law everything must come out about the state of the books and balance-sheets.

Plaintiff said he was not aware until 1920 that his brother Harry had made a full disclosure to the income-tax authorities, and repudiated the suggestion by counsel that he asked Harry to pay £36,000 as a gift to evade death duties.

Plaintiff said before his father's death he was suspicious that his father had kept books for the purpose of false income tax returns. "But my brother Harry boasted of it," he added.

The hearing was adjourned.

WIFE'S £1,500 ALIMONY.

Judge's Decision in Appeal by Ex-M.P. Who Made Fortune During War.

A former M.P. for Blackburn, who made a fortune during the war, was ordered by Sir Henry Duke in the Divorce Court yesterday to pay his wife £1,500 a year alimony.

Mr. Percy Thompson Dean appealed against an order of the Registrar that he should pay his wife £1,900 a year alimony.

His Lordship said the marriage was not quite a normal one. The wife was a shorthand-typist and the husband a traveller. They were married in October, 1906, and a child was born early the following year.

After the war the husband intimated that he was not going to resume their old life, and the wife obtained a decree of restitution of conjugal rights, and later a judicial separation.

When the petition for alimony came before the Registrar the husband's average income was about £5,700 a year, and the Registrar awarded one-third of this amount, £1,900 a year, as alimony.

FAITHFUL DOG'S VIGIL.

When the police early yesterday attempted to enter the bedroom of George Catlin, sub-postmaster of Broadbush, Hertis, they were held up for over two hours by the man's fox terrier, which prevented anyone from entering.

When the dog was driven off the police found Catlin sitting dead in his arm-chair.

Poudre Tokalon Gives the Fresh, Natural Colouring of Youth to the Complexion—

So many face powders these days give women an artificial made-up appearance. They often look as if they had put their faces in a flour bin and the skin was left all "fuzzy" from the clinging particles. The trouble is, too many powders are still being prepared by old-fashioned methods and from antiquated formulae containing starchy rice powder (Poudre de Riz). A coarse, impure, injurious, powder is often the result. It is a real art to make a fine, absolutely harmless face powder. It took the French years and years to perfect the art. But to-day, as a result, face powders of French origin are recognised the world over as being without equal. This is why French manufacturers ask a big price and get it. It was not until Poudre Tokalon was perfected in the Tokalon Laboratories at Neuilly-sur-Seine, Paris, and then brought to England, that women could get an absolutely pure, harmless, Parisian face powder for a price as low as one shilling. Poudre Tokalon does not coat or "fuzz" the face, it simply gives a marvellously smooth and fresh, delicate tone to the skin. It makes you look younger because it gives your complexion the fresh, natural colouring of youth without suggesting artificiality. Like Crème Tokalon, it is used by most of the beautiful women of the stage. Fay Compton, Ivy Duke, Phyllis Dare, José Collins, and hundreds of others say no other powder can compare with Poudre Tokalon. Boots Branches and all other good chemists, hairdressers, and stores can supply you with Poudre Tokalon for 1s. or the larger size at 1s. 11d. A trial packet containing Natural, Rachel, Pink and White shades is sent for 3d. in stamps. Address: Tokalon, Ltd. (Dept. 124M), 212-214, Great Portland Street, London, W.1.

NORTH POLE FLIGHT.

Amundsen to Start Polar Trip in Ten Days.

EXPEDITION'S PLANS.

CHRISTIANIA, Monday.
The s.s. Flint, having on board the Norwegian relief expedition equipped to assist Captain Roald Amundsen in his attempt to fly across the North Pole, and the Farne, which will follow the seaplanes, did not call at Advent Bay, as reported yesterday, owing to the ice. They called at King's Bay instead.

The German Consul, Herr Hammer, who is arranging a second relief expedition, and who left Hamburg yesterday by aeroplane with two other Germans, is expected to arrive at Christiania to-day, and will continue his journey to Bergen to-morrow.

On leaving Copenhagen Herr Hagen said there was no time to lose, as Captain Amundsen will start his flight on June 21.

The Farne is leaving King's Bay to-day for Dunes Island, to endeavour to find a good base for the seaplanes, which, in the meanwhile, will proceed to the ice edge to reconnoitre.—Ruter

APOLOGY REFUSED.

Girl's Court Story of Man Who Followed Her Home.

MIDNIGHT ADVENTURE.

Despite an ample apology for his conduct, Stanley Charles Bonniwell, aged thirty-four, a "wily glancer" occupying a "somewhat public position," and living at St. Quintin's-avenue, North Kensington, was fined 40s., with the alternative of twenty-one days' imprisonment, at Marylebone yesterday, for assaulting Miss Alice Goater, daughter of a police-constable, of Port-nall-road, Paddington.

Miss Goater was said to have been completely unnerved by the experience. She was returning home after midnight, she said, when accused followed her on the opposite side of the Harrow-road, coughing.

He then, added Miss Goater, crossed over and said: "I am lonely, and you look lonely, too." She told him "heaps of times" to go away, but he persisted in his attentions and pressed her to stay out with him.

She resented the offer and went to enter her house, but he followed, and she said, put his arm round her waist and pulled her down. When, eventually, she got inside, he tapped at the door.

At a previous hearing the accused denied pulling the girl down the steps or offering her money, and said she consented to his accompanying her home, and told him she did not dislike him and wanted to see him again.

Mr. F. Preke Palmer (solicitor) now appeared to defend, and mentioned that the accused, a young man with an excellent character and a very high Army record, had been very ill recently with influenza, and was given two weeks' leave of absence from business.

On this night he had four glasses of stout at a public-house, and it was under these circumstances that the incident occurred. He was thoroughly ashamed of himself, and the judge offered Miss Goater a most ample and humble apology.

Miss Goater, being asked by the magistrate if she accepted the apology, said she would like to, but she thought the accused ought to be punished in the same way that she had been. "There are always comments on anything like this," she added.

P.C. Goater (the girl's father) said he did not think the accused ought to go unpunished. Mr. Symonds then imposed the fine, saying, "It may mean his ruin, but I cannot help that if you insist upon it, Mr. Goater."

BRIGHTON READY TO WELCOME KING CARNIVAL ON HIS ARRIVAL TO-MORROW IN STATE

A prehistoric monster which will figure in the carnival procession.

The shops contribute to the carnival gaiety of the town.

A motor-car loaded "to capacity" with a merry party of revellers in fancy dress.

A happy group of funmakers parading the front in costume.

—which had an almost tragic sequel.

Everything is ready for the state entry of King Carnival and his train of revellers into Brighton for the opening of the festivities to-morrow. Grotesque figures and still more grotesque animals will figure in the procession, which promises to be one of the biggest and most complete ever seen.—(Daily Mirror photographs.)
